

From the Editor-in-Chief

I am pleased to inform the readers that the inaugural issue of the Hypertension Journal was very well received. The feedback was extremely positive. The current issue covers several important dimensions of hypertension which are of practical importance to the clinicians. You will see that hypertension across the various groups is covered in this particular issue. We have added a new feature on medical statistics. Often, a busy practitioner finds it challenging to comprehend the statistical significance of the outcomes research. Hence, our journal will continue to present reviews and discussions on medical statistics for the practicing doctors. This issue addresses newer and emerging therapeutic options for hypertension management. I believe that case reports are of vital interest to our readers and hence, this series is also represented in the journal.

I hope that this journal will assist and guide you in keeping with scientific literature and clinical management of hypertension.

Best wishes

C Venkata S Ram MD MACP FACC FASH
Editor-in-Chief

Hypertension Journal

Director, Apollo Institute for Blood Pressure Management

Director, Blood Pressure Clinics, Apollo Group of Hospitals

Andhra Pradesh, Hyderabad, India

Director, Texas Blood Pressure Institute, Dallas, Texas, USA

Director for South Asia Region

World Hypertension League (in partnership with WHO)